

THE CHILDREN
By James W. Harkleroad

Out-reach programs.

Feeding programs.

Keeping pornography out of public libraries.

Prison reform.

After school programs.

Drug abuse programs.

Diversion programs.

Housing programs.

Anti-poverty programs.

Advocating for children.

All of these are reactions to problems, Band-aids to reduce - not to eliminate - problems in the community.

Where is the community where such programs are not needed?

Where is the community that - instead of serving the wants of the adults - serves the needs of the children?

When the environment is not good for the children why are the adults continuing to force them to live in it?