Lying in a hospital after being severely beaten, stabbed or shot. They be wishing that they had taken heed of those who cared enough to take the time to talk to them. Such a strong force it is that it enable them to put their life on the line for a street corner or a neighborhood block. A force that causes them to possibly kill another of your own, resulting in life sentence without parole imprisonment.

Let Me Say this young brothers: for Many, their "environment" destines them gang life, for perhaps their whole lives. Some even do find the loyalty and camaraderie they desire, that they otherwise would have lacked. ~~Some even do find the~~ Some even go ~~on~~ to live Normal Lives. That's A Low Percentage, though. it's not worth the Chance for those who are drawn to this life who are not born in to that environment.

Somehow, it finds them and inevitably secures its spell as with the others. they come from good African American Homes and unknowingly are prepared to give that up for their newfound passion. An unpleasant path of danger.

i'll tell them what's so Alluring and enticing About gang life: the feeling of acceptance than attain, the feeling that you belong to something, that they're not Judged by how look, where they come from, or your economic position, you get protection, you attain a unique Adrenaline feeling of Superiority over everyone else, because they have they homeboys at your disposal, A New found Respect that you never experienced before. it ultimately becomes exciting to break the law, defying the police. A Rush you can't get Anywhere else.

All these factors that they ~~experience~~ I have described are the
