Sensory perception, is a doctrine that states we do not actually have an actual perception of the world we interact with because our senses come from our brain which process electricity and in a world made of electricity. People have probably asked themselves why it is that people have disagreements and are so different from each other if we were all born for the same purpose under generally alike environments. But what I would like to deligate is that there is an evolution of sensory peception in the generations of people. Long ago people's perception of the world was much different than it is today. I believe that there is a finite amount of energy in the universe and that it can not be created or destroyed. Life force is no exeption to this matter however the process is elusive as it can get. In order to introduce my theory I have to first announce that no human being is the same as another. But that's an understatement, I believe there's people who walk on this earth who cause and live on people's misfortune.

I believe also that a person's life force depends on his or her's sensory perception. Moreover, I claim there's demi-gods who take life force away from babies since until the day they begin to form memories. We are governed to be trapped inside our bodies while they spy, scheme, and experience life on different astral planes. They hoard all of our fruits for people like them selves and mischaracterize us helpless people as the devil or demonized, while the rich and famous hide behind semantics and manners safely from their true nature of deicide, society, and sociopathy.
