

Reincarnation or World Perception?

Eduardo Torres
#BD89a1
A-5-129

I always wondered how other people saw the world. It must've started when I thought of a conundrum, how are we sure people actually see the same color if we describe colors as the same, when, if a person has seen the same color be it personally different than anyone else's purple, black or yellow.

Kabalah has a Theory that says reincarnation is a matter that is based on the concept that I just tried to explain. World perception is subjective to senses which are basically brain electricity which makes the world subject to my conundrum. Everyone could be experiencing a totally different "life" than anyone else. Maybe that's the next step in technology goes into other people's brains. Which may just trigger the apocalypse because of the discovery of who's a demon and who is honest. Psychics known in the schizophrenia community uphold this claim.

- 65 2-13-20