

CRAZY

By James W. Harkleroad

One description of actions that have been labeled "crazy" reads as follows:

"When you keep doing what you know is not working - you are crazy."

If you accept this description as being accurate then it is agreed that any official who has been re-elected should be hospitalized for their own, and our, safety.

For they keep doing what they know is not working.

Take the criminal justice system as a case in point.

Has imprisoning more and more people reduced the crime rate?

No.

Has making more things criminal acts punished by imprisonment reduced the crime rate?

No.

Has making imprisonment for longer terms reduced the crime rate?

No.

Do the re-elected officials know that the above questions have a "no" answer?

Yes.

Sadly, the criminal justice system is not the only area where re-elected officials keep doing what they know is not working. Their lack of mental stability is evident in many, many areas.

The question is - Why do the voters keep returning into office individuals they know are crazy?

"When you keep doing what you know is not working - you are crazy."
