

Male Dominion

They say men have a higher rate for traffic violations and criminal offenses. My question is this, has anyone ever looked at the common denominator in all these statistics? It is always the domination of the male. These are the entities that are providing these tickets, providing false statistics. The male officer can choose who can go and who can be free. How many dates can one obtain from this free ticket? These are not true statistics when you have 90 percent male officers doing the writing. How about the informants? What are these statistics and where are they at? I imagine if you were to start digging you will find a flop in these services. Isolating the female for corruption or "corruption." The 90 percent male authority secures his dominion in his field with beautiful female operations. How about these statistics? You will not find them cause the one who runs these statistics is probably a male. The justice system needs to develop a neutralizing agent. That's right it needs to start emerging the female within these systems or the male will pervert justice with lustful faculties. Hiring more females will balance this problem. Men have a problem thinking clearly under these hepatizing forces that a beautiful woman can induce him into, this trance like state. The male loses his thought process of securing justice, trades it in for securing a personal relation. The male needs reins in his mouth to refrain from his personal desires. The animalistic forces are overwhelming for the male, needs help to secure his thought process and this is where the female employee comes in to provide the balance not only in the outer environment but also provides a mental balance in the male authority. The male will instinctively check himself, will hold himself to a higher standard with an equal female authority. This is a natural affect that needs no education or any program. The effects will be natural for the male officer. He will not even realize how drastically his behavior will change. His actions, thoughts, behavior will be conducted under these hidden forces. Behavior such as high fives for the nice piece of meat that walks in threw the door is over with. The female without question is a balancing force that needs to be embraced in these scales of justice
