

Self-Inflicted Fate

struck my child in a dream last night defiant she in her plight I awoke, tears blurred my sight oh Lord, I've done it wrong

I can't pretend a good man be broken was my mind, you see just remorse is killing me
oh Lord, I've done it wrong

incongruence of deed and thought once I was what now I'm not hated for the crimes I'm caught
oh Lord, I've done it wrong bowed am I in punishment of the selfishness I once loved dissonance from God above

oh Lord, I've done it wrong

I bid this life would let me leave morning, daytime, in the eve guilt and shame to which I cleave
oh Lord, I've done it wrong

Self-Inflicted Fate

(continued ...)

patient, humble, fearful I wait bearing my self-inflicted fate oh Lord, pass me through these gates I pray, it won't be long I pray :t won't be long

Scott Macdonald
#372656

(2)